Fundraising students give the sparkle back

Students at the College of West Anglia held a Give the Sparkle Back fundraiser for a charity helping cancer patients suffering treatment side effects.

The hairdressing, beauty therapy and nail technology faculties put their skills to good use, organising a week of events to support Look Good, Feel Better.

Staff and students styled hair, waxed, gave manicures and offered beauty treatments at the King' Lynn and Wisbech campuses, with money going to the charity.

Other activities included carol singing, competitions and a cake sale.

Together, the campuses raised £929 for Look Good, Feel Better, which provides practical support to women and teenagers during cancer treatment.

The charity, which celebrates its 20th anniversary this year, provides free make-up and skin care workshops at more than 70 hospitals and cancer care centres in the UK.

The college's programme manager for hair and beauty, Carole Gallagher, said: "The staff and students really got behind the event and their generosity has been overwhelming."

The charity has helped more than 114,500 patients since 1994. Find out more at www.lookgoodfeelbetter.co.uk
